

Limiting information dispersal ownership should increase the diversity and allow multiple venues for issues and concerns. A homogeneous point of view does not serve a democracy.

The government, working for the people of the USA, needs to strike the balance between all the people being heard or only a few. Having no ownership rules favors fewer Americans being heard. This should not become the Law.